THE MONTREAL ELECTION

By Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman

Two Jews will represent Montreal constituencies in the next Quebec provincial parliament. The first Jew elected to the Legislature in Quebec was not permitted to take his seat though re-elected several times. The fact that no one will question the right of the successful Jewish candidates to legislate for their province indicates how times have changed and with them men's attitudes After years and years of struggle it was recognized that a man's religion should neither qualify nor disqualify him for public office. We Jews particularly because we are of a minority religious group, who are the first to suffer when religion becomes a political factor, have always stressed the importance of keeping religious issues out of politics. We have been the staunchest supporters of the view that church and state must be kept separate. Yet despite this, too frequently at elections when there are Jewish candidates, these candidates to further their personal ambitions will somehow inject a religious question in the campaign. Either Jews will be asked to vote for candidates because they are Jews, or Jews will be asked to vote for candidates because of their views on Jewish issues which have no relevancy to the office these candidates hope to fill.

The latter was the case in Montreal. A Jewish issue was literally lassoed merely because an issue was necessary to win votes. The fact that the candidate who raised the Jewish issue was defeated is satisfying. It was not a rejection of him personally, because of his lack of qualifications or ability for the office. His rejection, we trust, was a powerful statement on the part of the Jews of Montreal that they resent the injection of religious issues in political campaigns. We hope that Jewish politicians will take this lesson to heart. Jews will not vote for Jews merely because they are Jews and the majority of Canadian Jews feel that Jewish controversies, and differences should be settled within the Jewish community and not in the political arena. They will repudiate any who for personal gain or glory seek to capitalize politically their religion or their particular Jewish views. Politically the Jews of Canada are Conservative, Liberal or Labour as their philosophies or interests dictate.

The Jewish part in the elections was hardly inspiring. The campaign between the two Jewish candidates was bitter, personal, filled with malice, and even with attempts at fraud. It seems as if the Jews had stooped to all the political chicanery, mud-slinging and corruption which has characterized elections in some notorious American communities. Here was the chillel Hashem. We Jews, the custodians of the Torah, the heirs of the prophets, should if loyal to our past and conscious of the obligations it imposes, stand out for our civic integrity and idealism. Corrupt electioneering is alien and hostile to the Jewish spirit. No Jew retains his ancient badge of aristocracy when he engages in it. Let us Jews keep our hands politically clean.

The Jews of Toronto cannot but envy the Jews of Montreal. At no time has a Jew been elected to the Ontario Legislature. In Montreal the dominant Liberal party has endorsed Jews for the

LOUIS MILLER—A GREAT JEWISH EDITOR

In the death of Louis Miller this week, American Jewish journalism lost one of its most interesting and dynamic personalities, and perhaps its greatest editor.

Miller belonged to the older school of Jewish journalists. He came to America over forty years ago, while still in his teens, and his intimate association with the earlier stages of the development of American Jewish life has invested him with the character of a living page of history.

Forty years ago the Jewish intellectual youth, seeking for beauty and significance in life, turned to socialism for inspiration and sustenance. Jewdom in Eastern Europe was still in the thrall of Ghetto conditions and ideas. It had no attractions for the venturesome youth who had caught a glimpse of the broader expanses of western culture. In America the continuing insurge of immigration kept Jewish life in a constant state of socio-economic and intellectual upheaval. In the large cities the bulk of the Jewish arrivals had to undergo the experience of translation from the class of petty bourgeoisie to the class of shop-labourers. The complete change in the mode of living of the immigrant masses caused the appearance of many ugly gaps and crazy patches, and ill-fitting adjustments on the scene of Jewish life. Modern Jewish nationalism with its definite Zionistic creed had not yet been evolved. The idealistic Jewish youth in Eastern Europe could find no more beguiling escape from the sordidness of the crumbling Ghettoes and the politico-social backwardness of the general life around them, than that afforded into the glittering avenues of socialistic Utopia. And these intellectuals when they came to America and saw the rawness and unwholesomeness of the new life, they naturally invoked the remedies of their socialistic cult. They had an ideal; they had visions; they had hopes. And these they injected into the weltering chaos of Jewish proletarian life in the big cities. The socialist intellectuals, participating in the activities of the immigrant masses, sharing their economic hardships, suffering with them the agonies of environmental exile, were able to speak to them in the intimate accents of their own experience, and gain their genuine allegiance. The socialist intellectual during the first twenty or thirty years of East European immigration, did more than any other agency to introduce an element of purposiveness and harmoniousness into the uprooted mass of Jewish existence.

Louis Miller was one of this group of Russian intellectuals who helped to guide the development of Jewish life during its early formative stages. He founded a number of Jewish periodicals and newspapers which he used as a medium for the dissemination of his ideals. He was one of the founders of the now wealthy "Forward," together with Ab. Cahan, and was its first editor. For many years he was one of the most powerful figures in Jewish socialist circles in the New York East Side.

Miller went through all the stages of the development of immigrant Jewish life. A leading socialist, he nevertheless could not fail to appreciate the steadying influence of contact with American ideas and institutions. American Jewdom, unsettled as it was at first, gradually began to adapt itself to the conditions of surrounding

WIN INSCRIPTIONS

The twenty-first convention of the Zionist Organization of Canada takes place in Winnipeg July 10, 11 and 12. M. J. Finklestein, of Winnipeg, is chairman of the convention committee. Canadian Hadassah will convene at the same time and place. Federation of Young Judaea of Canada will hold its convention in Toronto on June 25, 26 and 27, followed by a Western conference in Winnipeg at the same time as the Zionist and Hadassah conventions. Delegates to the convention will send their names and photographs to Zionist Headquarters, Montreal, or to M. J. Finklestein, Room 503, McIntyre Building, Winnipeg. Drawing of the raffle tickets for three Golden Book Inscriptions took place during Lag B'Omer at the Zionist Headquarters, 226 Sherbrooke Street West, Montreal. Winners were Mrs. S. Cohen, Kingston; S. Caplan, 135 Rideau Street, Ottawa; and M. Kosidoy, Yorkton. Nine hundred tickets were raffled in response to the Purim collection for the Jewish National Fund.

HADASSAH

Westmount Junior Chapter held a luncheon at the Lewis Reception Rooms, St. Catherine Street West, Monday, May 23, at 1 p.m. Mrs. M. A. Brown, the president, was presented with a bouquet of flowers by Mrs. Max Bernfeld. The conveners were Mesdames Leo Livingstone, M. N. Vineberg, and Misses Libbie Adelstein and Seena Hoffman. Trees were distributed. A programme was given by Mrs. Joe Freedman, reading of poems which she had composed; Miss Hortense Markus, piano solos; Miss Dorothy Leo, [illegible] on Hadassah Tubercular Hospital. Mrs.

RE-OPENING OF TROCADERO, THE PLACE OF PLEASURE

The Trocadero presents a lovely scene of gaiety and pleasure now that it has been re-opened with an extremely charming decorative scheme of rose-coloured brocades and soft champagne satins. The ceiling is of champagne satin, cleverly and beautifully draped, so that its sheen mingles with that of the rose brocade wall panels. An excellent orchestra plays jazz for dancing, and gives enjoyable classical concerts. The cuisine is satisfactory to the most epicurean; French and Italian suggestions adding piquancy to the menu, which includes a fine assortment of imported wines and beer. Afternoon tea is served on Thursdays and Saturdays, at little tables with rose-coloured lamps that add to the cheeriness, to the accompaniment of music and dancing, for fifty cents. The management is particularly courteous and pleasant about arranging private dinner parties, banquet groups and supper dances. You will be delighted with the loveliness of the new Trocadero.

Bordoff–Waldman

The marriage of Miss Bertha Waldman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Waldman, to Joseph Bordoff, son of Mrs. I. Bordoff, was solemnized May 19 at Bnai Jacob Synagogue, Rabbi Wachtfogel officiating. The bride, who was given away by her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. H. Boloten, wore a gown of white crepe romaine and Chantilly lace trimmed with rhinestones. Her veil of Chantilly lace was arranged in cap effect with clusters of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of roses, lilies and lilies-of-the-valley. Mrs. B. Finkleberg, sister of the groom, was matron-of-honour, in white chiffon velvet in bouffant style trimmed with lace and a white drooping mohair hat. She carried a bouquet of roses in shades. B. Finkleberg, brother-in-law of the groom, was best postel man. The bridesmaids were Misses Ada Klein, in a gown of white taffeta trimmed with maline, a red rose on the shoulder, and red satin shoes; Sima Beigleman, green crepe romaine, bouffant, with green shoes, Edith Claiman, gown of gold lace with gold shoes to match; and Queenie Ganstil, ivory satin gown with silver shoes. All wore tiny hats to match their gowns and carried pale pink roses. The groomsmen were Louis Cutler, Joseph Hirsch, Robert Fink, Samuel Walsh. Phyllis May, the flower girl, wore a frock of white georgette trimmed with frills, with white shoes and stockings, and carried a basket of rose petals. William Frager, wearing a tuxedo suit and silk hat, was page boy. Mrs. J. Waldman, mother of the bride, wore a gown of black chiffon velvet trimmed with silver lace with corsage of red roses. Mrs. I. Bordoff, mother of the groom, wore a gown of black crepe satin combined with cut velvet with a corsage of red roses. Mrs. H. Boloten, sister of the bride, wore a black sequin gown and a drooping hat to grey mohair, with corsage of pink roses. The groom was attended by his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. I. Bordoff, the latter in a gown of black crepe romaine with black mohair hat and a corsage of pink roses. Al Waldman, brother of the bride, was toastmaster. Miss Nellie Markman sang "O Promise Me." A reception was attended by 350 guests. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bordoff will spend their honeymoon in Atlantic City and Philadelphia. Going away, the bride wore a black silk faille coat trimmed with monkey fur, a black georgette turban with a dash of red, and crepe dress.

Several reports have recently come from various parts of Germany of the desecration of Jewish cemeteries by vandals. In consequence of a number of riots which have been conducted by the National Socialists, an extreme reactionary party, the Government dissolved the party. It was said that the party was involved in the murder of Walter Rathenau.

Says Jewish Women are Glutted with Luxury

While Jewish women of the old world are experiencing an intellectual and religious renaissance which will have a powerful effect upon the cultural and ethical development of the future, the Jewish women of the United States are becoming glutted with money, success and ease. Thus did Miss Irma Kraft sum up the results of her five years' investigation of the conditions prevailing among Jewish women in Europe, Asia, Africa and America in an address before the annual meeting of the Council of Jewish Women in the Mount Royal Hotel, Wednesday, May 18. Speaking of many American Jewish women, Miss Kraft declared that though they lived in a country where they had every opportunity to penetrate the arts and sciences, they were content, once they had married, to spend their time passing from the dinner table to the bridge or mah-jongg table. "They are in danger of dying of apoplexy from too much leisure, wealth and luxury." Officers elected: Honorary president, Mrs. S. W. Jacobs; honorary vice-presidents, Mrs. E. M. Berliner, Mrs. L. Fitch, Mrs. A. Lesser; president, Mrs. Max Bernfeld; first vice-president, Mrs. B. Rubin; second vice-president, Mrs. A. E. Morris; recording secretary, Mrs. Jay Wolfe; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. Freedman; treasurer, Mrs. I. Presner. The following conveners of committees were also appointed: Juvenile aid, Mrs. E. M. Berliner; big sister, Miss Mary Vineberg; entertainment, Mrs. M. Kirsch; civics, Mrs. A. E. Morris; educational, Mrs. A. Gardner; orphanage, Mrs. D. M. Chorlton; membership, Mrs. A. Levin, Mrs. H. Druxerman; immigration, Mrs. Martin Wolff; co-operation, Mrs. M. Greenblatt; clothes distribution, Mrs. Adelstein, Mrs. P. Presner; hospital, Mrs. D. Tannenbaum, Mrs. L. Livingstone; cook book, Miss Libby Jacobs; Neighbourhood House, Mrs. A. M. Rabinovitch; publicity, Mrs. D. H. Bernstein. Mrs. Martin Wolff, retiring president, occupied the chair. Reports read by the retiring officers showed that council activities included the donation of two scholarships for four years' high school tuition, a year's free violin tuition at the McGill Conservatorium, a donation of $100 towards the new Jewish Neighbourhood House, clinics in parental care, visits to the sick poor, care of immigrants, "big sister" work, distribution of clothes to the needy and of toys to children during the festival periods. At the head table were Miss Irma Kraft and Mesdames S. W. Jacobs, E. M. Berliner, Louis Fitch, A. Lesser, Max Bernfeld, B. Rubin, A. E. Morris, Jay Wolfe, J. Freedman and I. Pesner. Other guests were Mesdames P. Glickman, A. Levine, N. Lande, Moe Sherzer, Lewis Faber, E. Kert, L. Levin, M. A. Brown, J. Freedman, S. W. Jacobs, H. Abramovitch, Robert Dryer, S. Ross Vineberg, Sam Leopold, Felix Leopold, Max Leopold, Richard M. Pierce, A. B. Illievitz, J. Elkin, Leo Livingstone, R. Stone, P. Kert, D. H. Ballon, A. J. Alexandor, A. Gurney
a household word from coast to coast

Two years ago when certain chapters out of James Waterman Wise's book, "Liberalizing Liberal Judaism," were given in condensed form in this column many letters were received from Jews all over Canada protesting against too much mention of Jesus. This column this week will be dedicated to Max Hunterberg's new book, "The Crucified Jew," and such Jews as object to any examination into the life and crucifixion of Jesus are warned away from the following paragraphs.

This book of Hunterberg's is a compilation of addresses delivered in England and America from Christian pulpits to prove the falsity of the conception held by many Christians that the Jews crucified Jesus. He believes that the persistence of this misconception has been the most potent factor in the stimulation of world-wide anti-Semitism. "The Crucified Jew" is a short study of the events leading up to and the causes of the crucifixion of Jesus to prove from the pages of the Gospel that Jesus was loved by the Jews, hated and rejected by the ruling priestly family, condemned to death by a Roman court for treason against Rome and nailed to the cross by four Roman soldiers. "The Crucified Jew" makes interesting reading and is useful as a handbook for its references to the Gospel upon which any record of Jesus' activity must be based exclusively.

The writer tells that Jesus was born, lived and died as a Jew. As a rabbi he preached in synagogues and was called Master, which means rabbi in Hebrew. His moral lessons and style of teaching indicate that he must have sat at the feet of such celebrated teachers as Hillel and must have inbibed their intense national spirit and eagerness to see the mother land freed from Roman oppression. He believed that the first commandment centered in Shma Yisroel, in the unity of God, and that the second was to "love thy neighbour as thyself." He himself was not the founder of Christianity. He was devoted to Jerusalem and his denunciation of the intrigues, the pompousness and hypocrisy in the Temple was the denunciation of the idealist against the corruptors of the city he loved.

The country was subject to a militaristic power whose officials had control over the entire life of the Jews. Rome appointed the high priest and tax-collectors gathered tribute for the Empire. Jesus says nothing of revolt but sets the obligation to God sharply against the obligation to Caesar. In the teachings of Jesus two powerful leaders saw a danger to their wealth and power. They were Joseph Caiaphas, the high priest of the Temple of Jerusalem, and Annas, the former high priest and father-in-law of Caiaphas. Jesus came into conflict with the ruling priestly family when he made his triumphal entry into Jerusalem to celebrate Passover and denounced the traffic and misrule in the Temple in the presence of the multitude. The chief priests feared that the influence of Jesus might kindle a popular outburst, cause the fall of the house of Annas and bring upon them the vengeance of Rome. So they decided to put him to death.

Jesus was arrested by Roman soldiers at midnight and taken to the palace of Caiaphas where no Jewish trial took place. Hunterberg goes into detailed references to prove this and to show why Jesus could not have been brought before the Sanhedrin, the Jewish supreme court. Pontius Pilate, the Roman procurator of Palestine, upon whose will depended the life of Jesus, was a cruel man, feared and hated in Jerusalem. The chief priests accused Jesus of "perverting the nation and forbidding to give tribute to Caesar, saying that he is Christ, a king." So Pilate regarded Jesus as a rebel against the Emperor Tiberius and in accordance with Roman law he condemned Jesus to death and delivered him to his soldiers to be scourged and crucified. In brutal mockery the soldiers dressed Jesus as a king with a crown of thorns and the inscription on the cross summing up all the accusations against Jesus read: "Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews." That the Jews cried "Crucify him" the author denies, saying that Jesus was not the first Jew whom Pilate crucified for lesser crimes than claiming to be king of the Jews and that he needed no urging.

Hunterberg says that every student of good-will between Christians and Jews must face the question: Who killed Jesus? To the Jews the question is superfluous, he says, but very few Christians are able or willing to give the correct answer to the question. Hunterberg might also have said that very few Jews are able to support their contention that the Jews did not crucify Christ because they know nothing of the Gospel. They are unwilling to do much more than ignore all mention of Jesus. They know nothing of the New Testament and are satisfied either to know nothing or [illegible] deny that Jesus ever lived. Because of terrible centuries of [illegible] tion in the name of Christ and Christianity, most Jews are [illegible] to hear anything about Jesus, the humble man who went [illegible] country doing good. But if, as Hunterberg says, the questi[illegible] crucifixion must be faced in the interest of good-will, then Jews too must be able to come to their conclusion by first feeling free [illegible] the sources of the life of Jesus.

"We decreed a holiday"

When we inaugurated our super-speed 24-hour family wash service we virtually presented each Toronto housewife with one extra day each week, because that is just what it amounts to. Our return was immediate in the shape of such an increased volume of business that we were compelled to double the size of our premises. In addition to super-speed we have other services — all for family wash — one of which must surely meet your household requirements and also your household budget limitations. We'd be glad to explain. Phone to-day.

Crane concealed shower C4378-A. With Crane mixing valve for hot, cold, or tempered water.

"A tub may be fine for you, Dad"

WHEN children return from university or school, often the first thing they miss is the shower bath to which school life has accustomed them. Says Son: "A tub is fine for you, Dad. But give me a shower every time."

Mayhap, Dad makes the mental reservation that he wouldn't mind an invigorating shower such as he enjoys so much at his club, if he could conveniently have one in his home.

He can have it. A Crane shower, installed over the tub or in a recess, makes possible to every member of the family the quick plunge under water hot, cold or tempered.

Crane showers and the latest types of other plumbing and heating fixtures, valves, and fittings may be seen at the Crane Exhibit Rooms. A visit will prove interesting and profitable. You will not be asked to buy, since Crane sells only through responsible plumbing contractors.

RICH MILK

City Dairy Butter
Churned fresh every day from sweet, rich cream.

We Have a Yellow Wagon on Every Street Every Morning

The instant milk is delivered, protect it with ICE

OTHERWISE it will deteriorate, lose its rich flavor and vital food value—become unsafe for a young child to consume.

Why take such a chance when you can constantly keep milk fresh and pure at the cost of a few cents per day for ice.

Not only milk but other foods need the protection of ice at this time of the year. When you spend a dollar for food, why not add a nickel for ice to keep its flavor?

Ice melts slowly in the spring months; its cost is but a trifle.

Canadian Jewish Farm Schools

By EDMUND SCHEUER

About two years ago thirty-two Jewish farmers, under the direction of Rabbi B. R. Brickner, actuated by the knowledge that a crisis was reached in the immigration of Jews to Canada and inspired by the ideal of turning as many of their co-religionists into farmers as was possible, banded themselves together under the name of the Federated Jewish Farmers of Ontario. They acquired a two hundred acre farm near Georgetown, and during the last two years have done considerable pioneer work in encouraging and assisting Jews to acquire practical farm knowledge and to settle on the land. The results of their efforts speak volumes as to what could be done if the community at large gave this worthy cause its hearty support.

Men of very moderate means and without influence, the founders failed in establishing an institution such as is both desirable and necessary for the Jewish community. The Dominion government has given the Canadian Jewish Farm School its hearty approval and assurance of its sympathetic interest and co-operation.

In September last four men, recognizing the unlimited potentiality of the school, raised the sum of $2,000 to rescue the farm out of the sheriff's hands into which it had passed. Unable to secure further financial assistance, the institution was on the point of being wound up, when an opportunity offered itself to place the school upon a sound working basis.

Fifty Jewish war orphans, whom a small group of Detroit Jews had been maintaining in an orphanage at Mezrich (Poland) for the past five years, are now on their way to the Georgetown farm, with the express permission of the Department of Immigration and Colonization.

Many of these children are from fifteen to seventeen years of age, trained as mechanics and artisans, all in good health, mentally and physically; they will be accommodated at the Canadian Jewish Farm School where they will be trained as practical farmers under proper supervision for the next few years, and afterwards will be absorbed in the agricultural life of Canada.

What an opportunity as a start! Saving the lives of fifty fatherless and motherless children, to develop them into free, happy, useful Canadians, who, if left in Poland, would be faced with oppression, unemployment and wretchedness.

The Detroit people have already contributed a large sum of money for the reduction of the Association's present liabilities, the full payment of which they assumed. They are erecting on the Association's land at Georgetown a suitable building for the use of the children at an approximate value of $30,000. They pay all expenses of the transportation of the children from Poland to the farm, and in addition will defray one-half of the cost of the maintenance of the school for the first two years at least.

The Farm School is at present under the control of a provisional committee consisting of Edmund Scheuer, Norman Helpert, Theodor King, Charles Draimin, Lewis Samuel, Mrs. Harry Marks. Samuel King will act as legal advisor to the committee.

This is an all-Canadian Jewish institution, the most constructive one Canadian Jewry ever attempted to launch. It should appeal to all Canadian Jews, both as Canadians and as Jews, and should meet with their ready and generous support.

Funds are urgently needed to take care of the orphans upon their arrival at Georgetown. Contributions sent to Edmund Scheuer, Toronto 2, treasurer, will be acknowledged in the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW.

Donations: Mrs. Norman Helpert, $200; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Draimin, $200; Bertram Davis, $100; Samuel King, $100; Lewis Samuel, $50.

NORTHERN ONTARIO CANADA

Northern Ontario, now open for settlement at fifty cents per acre, contains millions of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world. Its resources in lumber, minerals, water, power fish, game and scenery are immense. The land calls for men to cultivate it, and in return will give health, comfort and prosperity.

What settlers say of the soil, climate, farming and forest life, is told in a most attractive booklet issued under the direction of the Honourable John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Full instructions in regards to acquiring a title to these rich agricultural lands are also given.

Editor,
CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW.

Can we maintain our reputation as a philanthropic people? comes the challenge to Toronto Jewry. Contributing dollars and cents towards the constant stream of campaigns, drives, theatres, raffles, programme ads., etc., etc., does not in itself constitute charity, and does not necessarily serve the object in view. In any case, it is only the beginning, and must be accompanied by the subscribers' concern of the poor; a knowledge of and confidence in the men and women who administer the community funds, at a minimum expense for collection and distribution; by the introduction of a system that will alleviate the wants of all the needy, and by the conservation of the physical and mental energies of volunteer workers, which has just about reached the breaking point. It is estimated that the sum of approximately a quarter million dollars is subscribed annually to the various local charities; and despite this, it is common gossip that most of our institutions are on the verge of bankruptcy. While it is generally conceded that our Federation of Jewish Philanthropies and other organizations are doing remarkably fine work, their efforts are frustrated, and it is impossible for them to properly function under the present trying conditions, as a consequence of which the poor are not receiving the full benefits of our philanthropy. It is almost incredible that with intelligent thinking men and women such a state of affairs does prevail, and is apparently taken for granted. If we study the facts, we come to but one conclusion—our present system is one of disorganized charity—ways and means of collecting, as well as the dispensation of charity, must yield to a complete change of action. Have we a solution to offer? There is a practical remedy, and while its inception involves a stupendous task, this idea is gaining favour and endorsation on all sides: The amalgamation of all Toronto Jewish charities and philanthropies, including educational centres, to be known as "The Toronto Jewish Community Chest," the board of directors to be comprised of representatives of each existing organization, to whom will be entrusted its proper business administration. Thorough and practical plans will be inaugurated similar to that of other large and successful city Community Chests. In the interest of our poor and for a better Toronto Jewry, this important question commands the earnest consideration and support of every member of the community.

Sincerely,

federal and provincial parliaments. Both candidates recently elected bore the endorsation of the Liberal party. In Montreal, apparently, the Liberal party does not refuse a man the nomination because he is a Jew. But in Toronto the dominant Conservative party has at no time officially approved the candidacy of a Jew to either the provincial or federal house. Though we are not interested in seeing a man nominated because he is a Jew, we do not relish seeing candidates constantly rejected because they are Jews. Comparing Liberal Montreal and Conservative Toronto, shall we assume that the Liberal party is not averse to seeing Jews holding important public offices, while the Conservative party is? Leaders of the Conservative party in Toronto have been anxious to eliminate religious prejudice from the political conventions. Thus far they have not succeeded, as the rank and file of the party has ignored its leaders. How long will it be till the rank and file of the party be brought to a higher level and remove even the slightest suggestion that the Conservative party in Toronto willfully refuses Jews for legislative posts?

The Montreal elections leave us with a bad taste. That will be removed by the two successful Jewish candidates, who we hope, by their integrity, altruistic and high-minded service and genuine devotion to the public weal, will prove that the ideals of the Jew have living exponents in them.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Levy and Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Lyons motored to Ottawa over the holiday to be guests of Mr and Mrs. L. Epstein.

The engagement is announced of Frances, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rabinovitch, James Street North, to L. Overthal. Wedding in June.

Mrs. A. Frank, Melrose Avenue, entertained Saturday about thirty children, friends of Perle and Marvin Frank, on their 11th birthday. After the matinee they sat down to supper and later played games. The dining room was decorated with apple blossoms and each child received a favour.

Mrs. B. Laing, Herkimer Street, entertained at bridge and mah-jongg, complimenting Miss Eva Marcus, a bride-elect of next month. Prizes were awarded to Mesdames Holtzman, Lax, Fauman, Moe Levy, M. E. Goldstone, Soskin, Shacknove. The bride elect received gifts. Present were Mesdames L. Goldberg, M. Goldberg, M. Chertkoff, Pliskow, Blumenthal, Weisman, Glass, D. Kauffman, H. Kauffman, M. E. Goldstone, H. Newman, J. Marcus, Freshman, Bercowitz, I. Levy, B. Levy, S. Silverstien, Guernsey, Treister, J. Sweet and Misses Eva, Esther and Ida Marcus, Pauline Sweet, Bessye and Minnye Newman. A bridge dinner and personal shower was held Thursday in honour of Miss Marcus. Covers were laid for twenty-five. The table was centred with a silver basket of orchids, sweet peas and yellow tulips. Prize-winners were Misses Francis Tick, first; Eva Marcus, second; and Bella Silbert, third. Music, dancing.

life, and to acquire a new character and poise. Unlike many other socialists, Miller did not believe in keeping the proletarian and Jewish nervous system in a constant state of tension in order to maintain its craving for the Socialistic nostrum. He saw many forces at play in Jewish life which helped to remould it and give it new contours and fresh powers. And he assisted these forces in their work. Miller was not doctrinaire. He was practical. He had faith in the quality of American life and institutions. He taught Americanization in the better sense, in addition to his more remote ideals of socialism.

Miller was the master of a trenchant style in writing. He was fearless and vigorous in expounding his opinions and these qualities won for him a large personal following. Miller's editorials were a power in Jewish journalism. People bought newspapers to read Miller's leaders.

When Zionism began to make its appeal to the masses, Miller realized the significance and value of its ideology, and he became one of its exponents. His sound practical sense made him appreciative of this new force in Jewish life.

The paper, the "Warheit" (the precursor of the present "Day"), founded by Miller in 1907, introduced a new era in American Jewish journalism. It was independent of any party or platform. It was a newspaper which aimed to afford a free forum for all types of ideas and doctrines in Jewish life. It was radical. It was socialistic. And it supported Zionism. It was modern, eclectic, seeing good in all parties, and supporting them all, insofar as they had something to contribute to Jewish life. At that time the other Jewish newspapers were the projections of the personalities of their editors or publishers and were tied to the apron strings of the latter. The "Forward" was the organ of Abe Cahan's jingo socialism. The "Morning Journal" was the mouthpiece of Jacob Samstein's militant Orthodoxy. The "Day News" was the reflection of Sarasohn's practical shrewdness. Miller was a strong personality. But his paper was allowed to reflect rather the play of the diverse forces and ideas in Jewish life than the pet doctrines of the editor.

The war and the post-war conditions, including the stoppage of immigration, have revolutionized American Jewish life. A host of new problems have arisen. These problems are not as broad and basic as the first problems which confronted the early settlement. They are delicately shaded. They require an eye more finely trained to analyze them. Louis Miller belonged to the pre-war school of journalists. In the maze and intricacies of the new problems he was lost. A new school of journalists has come to the fore, able to deal with the nuances of present life. During the last ten years of his life, Miller was practically passé. Several months ago the "Day" made a journalistic experiment in inviting Miller to write a special series of "Miller's editorials." These increased the circulation of the paper. Thousands of readers, cherishing the memory of Miller's trenchant style, eagerly sought copies to read the editorials. But the discriminating reader could not help feeling that Miller's voice latterly was but the echo of his old thunder. Miller had nothing new to say.

Miller was one of the outstanding personalities in Jewish journalism for over thirty years. He was a fearless, consumed by a strong sense of fairness and justice. He abhorred sham and shiboleth in public life. In many respects he was the greatest figure Jewish journalism has produced in America.

Dr. Israel Mattuck, Rabbi of the Liberal Synagogue of London, England, is on his way to this country. He will be present at the meeting of the Central Conference of American Rabbis and will probably address the gathering.
